Sheet Title: Other Related or Overlapping Conditions

There are a number of characteristics associated with Asperger's Syndrome, as there are with other conditions, and whilst every characteristic need not be present in order to obtain a diagnosis, many diagnostic criteria overlap with those characterising other conditions.

Also, where one condition exists, others frequently coexist.

These conditions, as well as Asperger's Syndrome, often result in secondary behavioural issues such as stress, low self-esteem, frustration, anger, anxiety and social difficulties, which must also be addressed in addition to the main characteristics of the particular diagnosis.
